His Wife's Mother.

He stood on his head on the wild seashore And danced on his hands a jig ; In all his emotions, as never before, stage stamps.

- A madiy hilarious grig. And why? In that vessel which left the bay His mother-in-law had salled To a tropical country some distance away,
- Where tigers and serpents prevailed. He knew she had gone to recruit her health And doctor her rasping cough,
- But wagered himself a profusion of wealth That something would carry her off. Oh, now he might look for a quiet life,
- And even be happy yet, Though owning no end of neuralgical wife, And up to his collar in debt.
- For she of the specs and curied false front, And the black alpaca robe, Must pick out a sailor to suffer the brunt Of her next daily trial of Job. le watched while the vessel cut the sea, "
- And bumpishly upped and downed, nd thought if already she qualmish could be He'd consider the edifice crowned.
- e'd borne the old lady through thick and thin, Till she'd lectured him out of breath; nd now, as he gazed at the ship she was in, He howled for her violent death-
- il over the azure horizon's edge The bark had retired from view, hen he jeaped to the crest of a chalky ledge,
- And pranced like a kangaroo. nd many a jubilant peal he sent O'er the waves which had made him free,
- Then cut a last caper ecstatic, and went, Turning somersaults, homeward to tea.

VARIETY.

Greeley's recipe for preserving peachesin strips not less than fifteen inches long; d them out on the grass to bleach for three and finally sprinkle with cinnamon, and in air-tight jars filled with sawdust.
- old colored washwoman, who used to groan her tubs, found consolation in the hope that would soon be where robes won't need ing, and a poor creature can upset her tub dance on the bottom of it, singing glory, baloo, forever and forever! "

- A Western editor who wants his subscribers to w their subscriptions, and who thinks that a newspaper is a necessary adjunct to every regulated family, bursts into the following ic strain of fable and moral : READING THE PAPER.
 - One took a paper, and his life Was happier than a king's; His children all could read and write,
 - And talk of men and things. The other took no paper, and, While strolling through a wood,

 - A tree fell down upon his crown And killed him—as it should.
 - Had he been reading of the news, At home, like neighbor Jim, I'll bet a cent that accident Would never have happened him.
- gentleman who had been brought up on good try butter lately stopped at a leading hotel t. Joseph, Mo., and looking over the tempt-bill of fare, made his order. It was promptly d, and he was indulging in the hope of a urious feast, when helping himself to some ter, along with the unctuous mass, a long , evidently from some human cranium, came ing out on his knife. He held it up, gazed piciously at it for a moment, and then ioned for the waiter. The latter individual mptly entered an appearance, when the guest, ling the knife up before him, pointed to the illary substance attached to it, and exclaimed voice loud enough to be heard by the whole e: "Look here, my friend, have you any
